

Empathy Map — Persona: Service Desk Agent

Quadrant	Notes
Says	"I just need to log this ticket fast." · "I didn't realize this needed an assignment group." · "Why did my update get blocked?"
Thinks	"I hope I filled everything the manager needs." · "This form has too many fields to remember for every priority level." · "I don't want to slow down my queue."
Does	Logs incidents quickly under time pressure · Sometimes skips fields that don't look mandatory · Edits records directly from list views when in a hurry
Feels	Rushed and slightly anxious about missing something · Frustrated when a save is rejected without knowing why · Relieved when the form guides them automatically

Pain points surfaced: unclear which fields matter for high-impact incidents, no immediate feedback on missing data until much later (SLA breach/report), ability to bypass form logic via list edits.

Gains the solution should deliver: automatic guidance on the form (auto-set Urgency), clear in-context error messages (onSubmit), and consistent behavior no matter how the agent tries to make the change (list vs. form).
